HURT AND MAY NOT RECOVER

Charles, 17-Year-Old Son of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Dudgeon is Injured.

IN AN INDIANAPOLIS ACCIDENT

Can Never Regain His Eyesight as Result and Other Hurts May be Fatal.

Charles Dudgeon, the seventeen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Dudgeon of East Seventh street, was injured in an accident in Indianapolis one day this week and it is likely that he may never recover. It is said that he has lost his eyesight and will never be able to see the light of day again even though he survives the ordeal through which he is passing. Mr. and Mrs. Dudgeon are now at the bedside of their son, who is confined in an Indianapolis hospital. From the meager reports that have been received here, a detailed account of the accident can not be had.

Young Dudgeon has been at work for the Beasley firm in Indianapolis for several weeks and was apparently doing well, when his mother received word that her son was ill. Yesterday morning she told her neighbors that she had heard that her son was in an Indianapolis hospital, seriously ill and that she was considering going to the Capital city to be at his bedside.

Yesterday evening she received a telephone message from the employer of her son, who said that young Dudgeon had been very seriously injured in an accident. From all that Mrs. Dudgeon could learn over the phone, her son was lying in a critical condition and that his eyes were so affected that he would never be able to see again. She left for Indianapolis last night to learn the true nature of his injuries and has not yet returned. It is said that he is so badly hurt that it will be impossible to move him.

ARRESTED FOR STEALING SHOES

But Albert Tyler is Repentant and Agrees to Pay Owner For the Pair of "Kicks."

JUDE LEVI MAKES THE CHARGE

The theft of an old pair of shoes, worth approximately one dollar, set the executive machinery of the city in action this morning, when Albert Tyler was arraigned before Mayor Black on a charge of petit larceny. The affidavit was sworn out by Jude Levi, who said that Tyler had stolen an old pair of shoes, belonging to him. Tyler was arrested last night, spent the night in jail and came up to court this morning. He was very repentant this morning and before the deputy prosecutor had arrived, the two men had reached an agreement. Levi asked that the charge be withdrawn, in view of the fact that the defendant had agreed to pay him for his shoes. The deputy prosecutor recommended that the mayor dismiss the proceedings, which he did, after lecturing Tyler, telling him that he would not get out so easily on the next offense.

LIVE UP TO REPUTATION

Haymakers Parade Street With a "Chain Gang" and Goat.

The Haymakers, a degree of the Red Men lodge, lived up to their name when they initiated eighteen candidates last night. All of the members, together with the "green One," logged out with straw hats and "rube" clothes, paraded the streets before the initiation, with the candidates in the chain gang. Ira Felts led the goat, while Jesse Williamson was compelled to ride a rail with a big sign on his back.

ST. PAUL WANDERER RETURNS TO HOME

Mace Bush, Who Tried to Shake His Wife in Indianapolis, is Able to "Come Back."

SEARCHES FOR HIS FURNITURE

Mace Bush, who recently left St. Paul and tried to "shake" his wife at the same time returned to St. Paul Friday and, it is said, was looking up the household goods which his wife had disposed of in his absence, says the Greensburg Democrat.

It was reported that his wife had received a post card from him postmarked St. Louis, but if this is true he did not tarry long in that metropolis, but made a quick return to the old Hoosier State. It is possible he may remain. It is believed that he was never any further west than Indianapolis. Bush has always been industrious and never given to any hair-brained escapades and domestic troubles are supposed to be at the bottom of his erratic actions.

DISLOCATES HER SHOULDER IN FALL

Mrs. Frank Gosnell Suffers a Painful Injury in Accident at Her Home.

CARRYING BUCKET OF WATER

Mrs. Frank Gosnell fell at her home in Gosnell avenue, between Seventh and Eighth streets along the J. M. & I. railroad yesterday and suffered a dislocated shoulder. She is sixty-five years of age and suffered great pain as the result of the accident. Mrs. Gosnell was carrying a bucket of water when the accident happened and is at a loss to explain just how she happened to fall. Her left shoulder was dislocated and will probably cause her trouble for some time. Dr. J. G. Lewis was called and attended to her injuries.

SEPTEMBER SETS A MARK

Twenty-Three Marriage Licenses Issued During the Month.

That September will outrival October for the fall month of marriages, will be probable after this, as this month has set a record this year. There were twenty-three grants to young couples made out in the clerk's office this month, which closed yesterday, while only nine were issued in the same month last year. Even June, the month of marriages, has not such a record as September.

IT'S NO APRIL FOOL JOKE NOW

Announced That President Will Issue Order Placing Assistant Postmasters Under Civil Service.

GIVING THEM A LIFE JOB

Postmasters of Second and Third Class Which Includes Local Office May go Same Route.

It was an April fool joke last spring, when the word was sent out that all assistant postmasters in first and second class offices would be placed under the civil service and would have a life job. But now it is stern reality, and there is no doubt but that Charles Brown, assistant postmaster here, has a job the remainder of his days, because the President has issued the order, which places all assistants under the civil service rules. It is said that money-order clerks in third class offices—the assistants are designated by that name below the second class offices—may also be placed in the civil service.

When the order was first reported to have come from Washington last April, the assistant postmasters everywhere were very much elated and then they suffered a severe jolt when they learned that it was untrue. But there is every reason to believe that the present order is official as it is sent out from Washington by the President. A Washington dispatch explains in detail:

As a first result of the Cabinet sessions, which are in progress in the White House, it was announced today that President Taft would issue an order placing approximately 8,000 assistant postmasters in the United States under the protection of the civil service law and taking them entirely out of politics. It was said also that the President would recommend to Congress this fall that all second and third class postmasters be placed under civil service rules.

About 7,622 assistant postmasters will be affected by the order. If the recommendations as to second and third class postmasters are adopted by Congress 7,198 additional postmasters will be placed under civil service regulations.

Postmaster General Hitchcock made the recommendations to President Taft both as to the assistant postmasters and to the officials of the second and third class.

Mr. Hitchcock went into the Post-office Department from the management of the Taft campaign. He acted as chairman of the Republican national committee. The policy pursued by President Taft has taken the postmaster general out of his political situation. This has been to his liking, it is said, and has enabled him to go ahead with his plans for a reformation of postal service.

HICKS FOR OCTOBER.

Hicks is out with his prediction for October. He says that the month will wind up with storms, snow and sleet. The middle of the month will see some severe thunder storms.

"THE CITY CHAP."

The Daily Republican's weekly song feature, found on page three of today's issue, is one of the best which has been offered recently. It is "The Big College," as sung in "The City Chap," George Ade's comedy, set to music, which was produced in Indianapolis by Purdue University and which many local people saw. The song is said to be the hit of the show.

TO MEET AGAIN MONDAY NIGHT

Merchants in Called Meeting do Little More Than Discuss Questions Under Consideration.

COMMITTEE DID NOT REPORT

Learn That Barn Can Not be Had For a carnival Until First Week in November.

The called meeting of the Rushville Retail Merchants' Association, held in the court house last night, was nothing more than a session of discussion as nothing definite could be done, due to the fact that the chairman of the committee, which was expected to make a report, was called out of the city unexpectedly yesterday afternoon. After about an hour spent, spent in discussing the various things which the merchants are considering at the present time, the meeting was adjourned to meet again on Monday night in special session, when the business, which was expected to come up last night, will be handled.

The new sidewalk lights was the principal topic for discussion. The chairman of the committee which went to Indianapolis Thursday to investigate the cost of the lights and to make a report as to the kind which would probably be used, was unable to be present and the report could not be heard. A telegram, however, which was received by the chairman from a Canton, Ohio, post firm, was read. It said that forty best iron posts could be purchased for $42.50, the price not including sockets, glassware and lamps. Several more estimates, it is thought, will be received between now and Monday night and they will be read at the meeting then.

The carnival committee reported that they had waited on Davis Brothers to learn whether or not they could get their big barn for such an event. They learned that they could not get it until the first week in November. It was first reported that the barn could be had the last week in October, but it has since been found that Governor Marshall will speak there during that week and the merchants would not have time enough to prepare for a carnival. The opinion was generally expressed that a carnival at that time would be a very hazardous undertaking, when the weather might be decidedly unfavorable. The committee was instructed to continue its investigation and a definite action will be taken at that time.

The meeting was adjourned about nine o'clock, the instruction being given to each member there that he make himself a committee of one to bring other members to the meeting Monday night.

RESIGNS POSITION.

Charles Offatt will resign his position at the Knecht Clothing company tonight, for outdoor employment. Mr. Offatt has been in the O. P. C. H. store since its beginning and was employed in the Silberberg store previous to that. He has "graduated" in the clothing business.

AGAIN REMINDED.

Greensburg News: Sam Trabue, a leading attorney of Rushville and well known in this city, having been here several times on visits to friends and account of practice in court, was married Wednesday to Miss Margaret Tritt of Knightstown. They will reside in Rushville, where Mr. Trabue has an extensive and lucrative practice.

Jesse Smith is suffering with a slight illness at his home.

CANCEL FOOTBALL GAME

Rushville Did Not Meet Greenfield According to Schedule.

The Rushville high school football team, which was scheduled to go to Greenfield today to play the high school team there, cancelled the date. They have not had much practice as yet and they feared that the men were a bit "green" for a game as yet. It is probable that a game will be arranged with Greenfield for a later date. Greenfield will play the Greenwood high school eleven today instead.

COMES TO ACCEPT A POSITION HERE

Allen Hiner, Son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hiner, Becomes Assistant City Editor.

OF THE DAILY REPUBLICAN

Allen Hiner came from Chicago last evening to accept a position as assistant city editor on the Daily Republican. Mr. Hiner is "a Rushville boy" and has spent all of his life in this city with the exception of the past two years, when he has been a student in Wabash college at Crawfordsville. He has been employed at the Marshall Fields store in Chicago during the summer months. Although Mr. Hiner has had no previous practical experience in newspaper work, he comes well qualified for his work by reason of his two years in Wabash, where he took special work along that line. He is interested in the newspaper game and expects to learn it from the "ground floor up." Mr. Hiner is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hiner of North Main street.

MAY SELL I & C IN NOVEMBER

H. C. Allen, Appointed by Judge in Official Decree, is Master Commissioner of Sale.

LOCAL MAN ON COMMITTEE

Certificate Holders Are Willing to Exchange Papers For Reorganization Bonds, is Statement.

The decree ordering the sale of the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction company's holdings was made official yesterday, when Judge Vinson Carter, Superior Court, Room No. 3, before whom the receivership case was held, attached his signature to the instrument, says the Indianapolis Star. Allowing legal time limits set for advertising the sale, William L. Taylor said yesterday afternoon Henry Clay Allen, master commissioner of the sale, probably will offer the traction line for sale at the south door of the court house at 9 o'clock November 3 or 4. It is possible it may be a day or so later.

As a member of the committee representing the certificate holders, Mr. Taylor said the owners of this paper are willing to turn in their holdings in exchange for bonds of the reorganized company, taking the new bonds at 85 cents on the dollar. That is, they offer to turn over $1,000 in certificates for $1,176.47 worth of bonds of the proposed new issue. Beside Mr. Taylor, the committee is composed of T. W. Siemon, Pittsburg, Pa.; John T. Beasley, Terre Haute, Ind.; A. B. Conover, Chicago; G. D. Wellington, Chicago, and J. F. Wild, Indianapolis. The committee represents about $800,000 worth of receivership certificates.

In the decree issued by Judge Carter the minimum price is given at $1,045,000 and a sale can not be made unless the highest bidder offers at least that figure. Should the committee representing the bondholders, which will be in the competition for the ownership of the road, bid as high as that, the certificate holders will turn their holdings into the buying fund, which will be counted in dollars and cents.

The committee which will represent the bondholders will be composed of the trustees named to attempt a recent reorganization of the company which failed. The committee is composed of Winfield T. Durbin, Anderson, Ind.; Theodore F. Rose, Muncie, Ind.; George A. Ball, Muncie, Ind.; Claude Cambren, Rushville, Ind.; and John J. Appel, Indianapolis. If the committee does not bid an amount equal to the minimum price as stated by the court, the court will be asked to reduce the minimum and have the sale readvertised.

The decree for judicial sale was issued by Judge Carter Thursday upon an intervening petition filed by the Westinghouse Electric company, the General Electric company, the Kinser Construction company, and the John Roebbling's Sons & Co., holders of receivership certificates.

HERE IN CASE.

Says Higher Standard of Living Is Possible Under Present Pay

Every union labor man in Indiana and many workmen not union men know, or know of, Edgar A. Perkins, long president of the Indiana Federation and a prominent labor leader. Politics with him is a secondary matter and he usually votes and works for men supposed to be the friends of labor regardless of party. He has just given an interesting interview to Louis Ludlow of the Star on the high cost of living of which the following is an extract.

In the main, what is known as the high cost of living is due, Mr. Perkins thinks, to the fact that people are living better today than ever before, and are enjoying comfort and conveniences their ancestors never dreamed of. He rejoices in the fact that laboring men and their families are able to live so well and to surround themselves with so many improvements that give zest to living.

Mr. Perkins is not convinced that he wants to see an era of real low prices again, because experiences has taught him that when prices are exceedingly low the workingman usually doesn't have the price, and has to do without even the necessities of life. He has a very vivid recollection of the soup-house era of 1893, when prices were very low.

Mr. Perkins is one of the very few Indianapolis who kept a scrap book during that notable era of distress. It contains page after page of clippings from Indianapolis newspapers, setting forth descriptions of heartrending scenes. One clipping summing up the record of the Commercial club soup-house for a week, states that 4,392 persons were fed during the week at a cost of $375. This was less than 50 cents per person. Prices were very low, but the difficulty was in getting the price.

"During that soup-house period men who could not get employment worked for nearly nothing," said Mr. Perkins. "A carpenter who had a job putting a floor in a building told me he worked for ninety cents a day. Those were long days of ten hours and flooring is very hard work. Today the same man earns $3.50 a day for an eight hour turn. Of course it costs him more to live, but he can afford it."

Mr. Perkins said he was not "so much opposed" to the high cost of living, so called.

"It means," said he, "that men are no longer satisfied with a full stomach, but are striving for better conditions in every way. Twenty-five or fifty years ago we had poverty, and lots of it. I will venture the assertion that if you will search through the books of the trustee of this township you will find that more relief work was done forty years ago than is required nowadays notwithstanding the very great increase in population."

"People are demanding a better and higher grade of living than they ever demanded before, and that accounts, in large measure, for what is known as the high cost of living. Things which satisfied when I was a boy no longer satisfy. The sort of clothing worn when I was a lad is no longer in use, except to a limited extent. I was toggled in blue jeans and felt like a prince, but you can count on the fingers of one hand the boys of your acquaintance who are wearing blue jeans these days. No longer ago than my boyhood the man who carried a gold watch was an aristocrat and the occasional families that could afford pianos certainly were nabobs. There was no piano at our house, you can rest assured, but my sisters had an old wheezy organ, and I think they enjoyed life just as much as if they had a piano. Now it matters not in what section of the city you go of an evening you hear girls thumping on pianos."

"When I was a boy and wanted a sled I made it. When I wanted a wagon I made it also. I have four boys and when they want such things we buy them. That contributes to the high cost of living and ours is a typical family."

"The idea of eating tomatoes, fruits and the like out of season never occurred to us. We waited for our tomatoes and vegetables until the 'garden sass' got ripe. The commission house dealing in imported fruits, melon, etc., if they were such establishments then, did no business with us. I never saw such a thing as a vegetable out of season when I was a boy. I got one orange a year and that was at Christmas. In lieu of bananas, we went out to the woods and got pawpaws."

New SAXONIA Incandescent Kerosene OIL LAMP BURNER

SAXONIA BURNER

Complete with Mantle and Chimney. $3.00, Express Prepaid

Fits either No. 2 or No. 3 Collar Lamp.

It produces three times the light of an ordinary lamp at one third the cost. The SAXONIA is truly a great invention. A feature seemingly impossible has at last been perfected with the SAXONIA. Gas is made directly off the top of the wick and burned on the inside of the mantle, similar in looks to the ordinary city gas mantle. The combination of air, oil and the Saxonía makes any lamp a wonderful power of light and absolutely safe.

The SAXONIA lights on the wick and turns down (and there is no odor) like any ordinary lamp, turn it up and the flame immediately expands to the mantle and then into a beautiful, strong white gas light, so strong and so economical.

With This Contentment Against Law of 1909 Giving Indianapolis Park Board Extraordinary Power to Levy Taxes, the People of That City Have United in an Effort to Have the Objectionable Law Cast in the Discard.

Indianapolis, Oct. 1.—A case to test the right of the city to levy assessments for improvements of boulevards has been filed by owners of property in the east park district. The action was filed by attorneys employed by a committee appointed at a meeting of property owners who are objecting to the assessment. The constitutionality of the act of 1909, giving the city the right to proceed by assessing an entire park district is denied in the suit, which is one to quiet title as against the city, the park board and the county treasurer.

It is contended that the statute is contrary to the constitution of the United States, in that it takes property without due process of law, as authority is given for making assessments on land owners without giving the property owner the right to be heard, and because the assessments are made on the valuation of the lands for taxation, and not with regard to actual benefits accruing to the property. Among the many objections to its constitutionality under the Indiana constitution are that it does not provide for uniform and equal taxation on all property within the taxing district; that it provides only for taxing lands, and not improvements and personal property; that the act does not prescribe such regulations as insure just valuation for assessment purposes; that it is a special tax on property for a public use, because the law provides for the purchase of property by the city with funds raised by assessment on only a part of the property within the city, whereas such lands being for the use of the whole city, should be paid for by general taxation.

TRIAL IN PROGRESS

Terre Haute Negro Charged With Killing Detective.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 1.—A jury has been obtained for the trial of William McGowan, colored, for the murder of Detective George Lintz. Lintz surprised two men who were ransacking the Elks' home. He was shot and died the next day, but not until he had positively identified McGowan. Detectives went to McGowan's home and found him in bed asleep. McGowan, who had been employed at the home, denied his guilt. The day of the shooting a negro named L. G. Riley was taken to police headquarters, questioned, and then released. He left the city almost immediately. He was employed at the home and left there an hour before Lintz was shot. A letter bearing the initials "L. G. R." is in the possession of the defense. It expresses regret over McGowan's predicament and declares that he is innocent of the crime. An effort will be made to get the letter before the jury.

Trainmen Held Responsible. Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 1.—Coroner Leavitt held Engineer O. H. Fox and Conductor Ray Barlow responsible for the collision on the Southern Indiana, when Engineer Cornutt of a passenger train, and Car Repairer Burkeville, of a work train, were killed. Both men admitted that they had forgotten all about the passenger train.

Father Accidentally Kills Son. Evansville, Ind., Oct. 1.—James Harris accidentally shot and killed his five-year-old son, near Newtonville, Spencer county. In taking his shot out of the house to kill a chicken hawk that lighted in a tree near by, it was discharged and the boy, who was sitting in the doorway, had his entire lower jaw blown away.

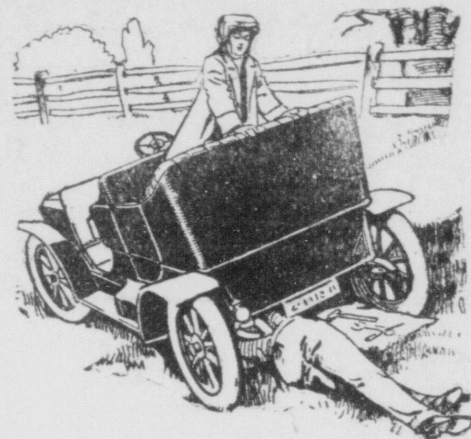

Want Soldiers' Monument. Princeton, Ind., Oct. 1.—Thirty petitions containing 4,000 names and asking the establishment of a soldiers' monument in the courthouse square, have been filed with the county commissioners. An appropriation of $25,000 will be urged.

Reading the "Views of the People" in the city papers one can get an idea of what the average voter thinks of party differences. "Hoosier" of Greenwood, Ind., admonishes the Hon. John Overmeyer of North Vernon, as follows: "Be a progressive insurgent, vote right—which is Democratic. Fall in line and get what you so gushingly wish you had."

The Huntington Times, edited by Thad Butler, the dean of Republican editors of the State, says: "Senator LaFollette's Wisconsin backers are afraid of their own teachings. They now insist that all legislative candidates must make a pledge in writing to support LaFollette for State Senator under penalty of defeat by LaFollette's friends at the polls. The right to 'insurge' is exclusively the prerogative of the insurgent bosses—the people must stand hitched under all circumstances."

And here comes the American consul at Aden on the Red Sea telling us about how Mocha coffee is grown and marketed by the Arabs. Mocha coffee? The phrase seems familiar. Oh yes, that used to be one of the labels of a certain coffee that had a large sale in the land, but a year or more ago the poor manufacturer had to take it off because he did not get his coffee from Mocha at all, or anywhere in Arabia or Turkey, and those pestiferous pure food inspectors compel manufacturers now to tell the truth on their labels. And there's Java; it used to be as common as postum before the fraud was discovered. Both Mocha and Java coffee are on the market, but the everyday coffee drinker who belongs to the great plain people the politicians are so fond of never tastes them.

The Muncie Press says that to the observant outsider and onlooker at the recent political party conventions it must seem pretty hard to decide what the parties stand for really, wherein lie their differences and where those who will vote under the same emblem can get together on principles this year.

INDIANA POLITICS

[Special Correspondence.]

Indianapolis, Oct. 1.—There has been more than the usual interest in the first week of the Republican speaking campaign. The Republicans have been deeply interested in the reception given to Senator Beveridge by Indiana voters. It may be said the Democrats have been even more deeply concerned over this important matter. As a result of the first week's work, the Republicans are pleased beyond measure and the Democratic managers are veiled in their own gloom. Senator Beveridge's first meeting, in Indianapolis, was one of the best openings ever seen in Indiana. His speech on that occasion gave him forward place among the nation's great. This is the verdict given in letters and telegrams which have poured in upon the senator and upon the Republican state committee ever since the opening.

The effect of the Tomlinson hall speech of Sept. 27 has been to crystallize the sentiment for Beveridge and for the Republican ticket, among the independent voters. This is shown by the remarkable letter of Augustus Lynch Mason of Indianapolis, in which he comes out strongly for Beveridge. It also is indicated in the letter of John Overmeyer, another independent, living at North Vernon. Mr. Overmeyer says he has attended campaign openings for twenty-eight years in Indiana, and that the Beveridge meeting and the speech on that occasion surpassed anything he had ever seen or heard. The ovation to Beveridge and the enthusiasm for his cause have accompanied him on his tour from city to city throughout the state.

It had been predicted that the meetings in the early part of the speaking campaign would be lightly attended. The sowing of wheat and the cutting of corn are matters to be reckoned with, especially in preparing for afternoon meetings. The results of the Beveridge tour thus far have been to dissipate the fear that the crowds would not materialize. The attendance at the meetings has far exceeded expectations. The interest taken by the people has been much greater than was predicted. More than 2,000 people heard Senator Beveridge at Attica Wednesday. Lafayette turned out over 4,000. North Vernon showed up with a tremendous crowd, and Greensburg outdid her sister cities. Vevay and Batesville were opt en masse.

The meetings have been attended by large numbers of Democrats and independents. Senator Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota has been talking to the people of Indiana, and has been telling them they ought to return Senator Beveridge. Senator Clapp has said without hesitation that Senator Beveridge is the real leader of the day in the national forward movement. At Logansport Senator Clapp was greeted by a large number of rural Democrats, and at one point in his speech they caused a demonstration by responding to a question that Senator Beveridge would never be defeated by their votes.

Some of the Democratic leaders have been saying that they would be able to judge of the drift after watching the Beveridge meetings for a few days. If they have followed the Republican rallies of the last week, the Democrats must have come to an unwelcome awakening on the subject of public drift.

Word comes to Indiana people that Colonel Roosevelt is to speak ten times in Indiana. He will stop at Covington, Crawfordsville and Veedsburg on the way to Indianapolis, will speak twice in Indianapolis, and also will speak at Anderson, Muncie, Richmond and one or two other places in Indiana. Republicans are jubilant over the prospect of the Roosevelt series of meetings. Since Teddy won such a signal victory in New York state and worked out harmony with such success for Empire state Republicans, he has become even more an asset for Republicans and a hero before the voters generally. It is expected that he will give the people just the sort of counsel they like best, and that his speeches will have great weight with all sorts of men. The Indiana Democrats held a session in this city this week to provide a line of defense or offense against Roosevelt. They were busy attacking Roosevelt for taking a part in New York politics, but when he won out over the bosses, the Indiana Democrats were put out very seriously. In fact, Indiana Democratic managers do not know at this time what to do to meet the Roosevelt issue as it is presented in Indiana by Roosevelt's coming Oct. 12.

AMUSEMENTS

Blanch Ring, a comedienne and singer, whose methods and ability have placed her at the top of the list of American players of her class, will be the attraction of the New Murat theater, Indianapolis, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, October 3d, 4th, and 5th and at a Wednesday matinee of the latter date. Miss Ring will be seen for the first time in Indianapolis in her new musical play, "The Yankee Girl," in which she has recently terminated a lengthy and prosperous run at the New York Herald Square Theater.

"The Yankee Girl" is the work of George V. Hobart and Silvie Hein, the former contributing an amusing book and the latter a pleasing and tuneful musical score. Miss Ring plays Jessie Gordon, a whole-souled American girl, who while traveling through a Southern Republic with her father, finds herself in the absence of the latter, confronted with the opportunity to prove her loyalty and patriotism to Uncle Sam by pushing through to success all alone, an important American business deal. This she does successfully and incidentally wins her reward in the person of the local American consul, to whom she becomes engaged.

The numbers sung by Miss Ring include "Nora Malone," "The Wise Fisherman," "Louisiana Elizabeth," "The Top of the Morning" and in response to insistent demands she still sings "Rings on My Fingers."

The company with which Lew Fields and Frederick McKay, Miss Ring's managers, have surrounded her, is one of more than usual excellence. It is headed by Harry Gilfoil, the comedian and mimic, so long a feature of the Hoyt farces and latter a popular headliner in vaudeville. Others in the caste are William P. Carlton, Halliday and Curley, Juliette Lange, Alfred De Ball, Marguerite Wright, Jean Villanova, Paul Porter, Henry Bergman, Margaret Malcolm, Cyril Ring, Fanny Kidston and E. J. Caldwell. There is a chorus of much beauty and of far more than ordinary singing and dancing ability.

The Vandet management will offer a big double program tonight with two reels of pictures. "The Nichols on a Vacation" is an Imp production, which is comedy in the true sense of the word. When the maid is discharged, Nichol must do the work and many other things which are heaped on his shoulders by his wife. He makes a date with a lady friend at a restaurant and awaits her coming, when his wife enters. He escapes detection, but the lady friend arrives all right. The humorous complications which arise are left for the person with the most imaginative mind. A new illustrated song will be sung.

Two Biographs in as many nights is the record the Palace theater will have after tonight, when the subject, "The Modern Prodigal" will be shown. The story is drawn from the Bible tale of the prodigal son with a few added points which make it an event in the life of a young man of the twentieth century. The callow youth seeks the city, where he is swept under the current by yielding to temptation. He returns to his

"If I never knew before how much I do mean it I know it now, when I've got to say goodbye."

"Look here, Lesley—do look at me. I'm awfully cut up at leaving you."

"You're not to call me Lesley."

"You can't prevent my calling you Lesley to myself."

"You'll soon forget the name."

"Never. I can never forget you—worse luck. The thought of you is going to come between me and—other things."

"The thought must learn better manners—not to 'butt in,' as we say over here. Oh, it will soon be tamed. You'll have so much to do."

"I hope I shall," said Loveland. "I say, are you going to forget me as soon as we're parted?"

The girl was silent for a moment. Then she laughed. "I shall make a note of you for my next story but one," she answered.

"You're not very kind."

"Are you sure you deserve kindness?"

"I'm sure I want it—from you."

"You have always got what you wanted in your life, haven't you, one way or another?"

"Life wouldn't be worth living if one didn't."

"Oh, it's not much good saying to you that that's a selfish way of looking at life. But you've never had any lessons, and I suppose you never will have. You'll go on getting what you want and taking it for granted that you ought to get it till the end."

"I hope so sincerely," said Val without shame. "But I shan't get one of the things I want most unless you promise to write to me."

She shook her head. "I can't promise that. I wouldn't if I could. As for getting your news, I shall read it in the papers, which are sure to chronicle all Lord Loveland does and says and a lot he doesn't do or say. I shall see rumors of your engagement, then an announcement. I wonder if it will be the survival of the prettiest—Miss Coolidge—or if you'll be knocked down—on your knees—to a higher bid?"

"You're not letting me get much pleasure out of my last moments with you," he complained, his blue eyes really pathetic. "Do you despise me, after all?"

She looked up at him. "Only one side of you," she answered a little sadly. "But—you're rather like the moon. We see only one of her sides. The other we have to take on faith. Perhaps it's silly of me, yet sometimes, in some moods, I do take your other side on faith."

"What is there—on that side?" he asked eagerly.

"I don't know. And I'm sure you don't. You probably never will, for the light shines so brightly on the one side of you."

turned toward the world. Now it must be 'goodbye.'"

"Don't forget me. Think of me sometimes," Loveland implored as he wrung the little hand she held out.

"I will think of you sometimes," she said as if mechanically repeating the words.

"Try to think the best of me."

Lesley and Mrs. Loveland all got their luggage dumped down under letter "D" before a single "L" box had appeared. Then when Val's did come and the property of other impatient "L's" at the same time the outside world was lost to view. Loveland got hold of a good natured custom house man, who, considering the indubitable fact that he was dealing with a British subject and believing the "Britisher's" statement that he was merely on a visit to America, made no unnecessary trouble.

Very few minutes were wasted in the examination, though Americans all around were suffering severely. Nevertheless, when his keys were in his hand again and Val was ready to separate himself and his belongings from the seething mass of anxious "L's," Miss Dearmer and her aunt had vanished off the face of the dock.

CHAPTER VI.
FOXHAM REDIVIVUS.

LOVELAND tried to put thoughts of the girl out of his head as he drove through the exciting streets of New York, which seemed to him colorful and strange as a vast flower garden sown regardlessly.

But, despite the rush and roar of "elevated trains" above his head, the swift whirl of electric trains to left, to right of him on a level and the bizarre effect of the skyscrapers, which turned long thoroughfares into shadowed valleys, he could not throw open his mind to the rush of new impressions. This brilliant New York made him feel, after all, a person of comparatively small importance.

Loveland had heard of the Waldorf-Astoria. Men he knew who ran over to New York on such errands as his own stopped at the Waldorf-Astoria or Holland House or the Plaza, and Val, who believed that the best was only just good enough, would not risk hiding his light under a bushel. True, he had very little money, but he had plenty of invitations and was certain to have more. A couple of days at the most expensive hotel could not break him, and Jim and Betty Harborough's millionaire friends would probably expect him to be conspicuous.

Loveland's intention had been to ask for a small room, high in situation and low in price, but once inside the immense red brown building, which looked vast enough to hold half New York, pride tied his tongue. Pretty girls, beautifully dressed, and prosperous looking men, with facial expressions as supercilious as his own, were standing within earshot, and Loveland could not resist satisfying an impulse of boyish vanity. He announced to a superior gentleman at a desk that he wanted a good room with a bath. His charming voice and "English accent" attracted the Americans near him, and under his mask of indifference Loveland was aware of the attention he excited.

The superior gentleman thought for a moment and consulted a book. Then he said that he had no single rooms with baths disengaged at present, but that there was a suit consisting of bedroom, bath and parlor, just one suit, and that probably would be gone in another minute.

The hint of rivalry decided Loveland. "Very well; I will take it," he said. "Here's my card, if you wish to know to whom you are letting your rooms," he went on haughtily in response to a sharp glance from a shrewd, experienced eyes. And the hotel clerk read aloud, "Marquis of Loveland."

At this every one who had been staring at the handsome, arrogant young Englishman began to stare, and Loveland was not displeased.

"My luggage will be here soon, I hope," he said, showing several metal disks about which his ideas were rather vague. The clerk answered civilly that the trunks ought to arrive in half an hour or so, and a smart youth in livery was told off to show

Lord Loveland his rooms.

They were very luxurious rooms, almost too luxurious, and Loveland experienced a faint qualm as it occurred to him that he had neglected to ask the price. "But they can't come to more than five or six pounds a day at the worst," he thought hopefully.

He had brought his suit case in the cab, and as the letters of introduction were in a little portable writing desk contained among the fittings he got out the packet to read over the addresses. All the friends to whom Jim and Betty were commending him lived in New York, and Cadwallader Hunter had said that most New Yorkers were at home in November.

Loveland was just deciding that the letters had better reach their destination before night when his baggage appeared. Loveland touched an electric bell in his bedroom, demanded of an unexpectedly responsive telephone that the hotel should produce a valet and criticised the product adversely when it came.

Luncheon time was near, and Val was hungry, but he would not leave wardrobe and jewelry to the discretion of a strange servant. In a mood swinging toward impatience he sat down on a cushioned sofa to watch the valet's proceedings.

The larger of the two noble portmanteaus was opened, the neat square of gold braided and coroneted brown velvet with which Foxham always covered the contents of each box was removed, and a pile of clothing was deftly excavated.

Loveland's face changed from attention to surprise, then to bewilderment. "By Jove," he exclaimed, "those don't look like my things!" Then, springing up alertly, he began to toss over the pile as the hotel valet deposited it upon the bed, to toss it over as a haymaker tosses hay. But in the midst he drew back his hand as if he had inadvertently touched pitch. "Jove," he stammered again.

"Wrong luggage, sir?" ventured the servant.

Loveland did not reply. He did not even hear, for his thoughts had taken a trip of record quickness across the sea and were already in London chasing a mystery. But if the valet had stopped to think an answer would have been unnecessary. The keys

BUT ONE BALLOT WAS REQUIRED

New York Democrats Name Ticket at Midnight.

CHAIRMAN DIX FOR GOVERNOR

Congressman Sulzer's Name Was Also Presented to the Convention For Head of Ticket, but He Got Only 16 Votes, the Balance of the Ticket Being Named by Acclamation—Platform Evoked Cheers From Delegates.

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 1.—The following ticket was nominated last night by the Democratic state convention:

For governor, John A. Dix, Albany; lieutenant governor, Thomas F. Conway, Clinton; secretary of state, Edward Lazansky, Kings; comptroller, William Sohmer, New York; state engineer, John A. Bensel, New York; treasurer, John J. Kennedy, Erie; attorney general, Thomas F. Carmody, Yates; associate justice court of appeals, Frederick K. Collins, Chemung.

The whole ticket, save governor was named by acclamation. At 11:20 the balloting for governor began. It was soon seen that Dix would easily be the nominee of the convention. When the vote was announced by the chair Dix was found to have received 434 votes to William Sulzer's 16. John A. Dix, who is chairman of the state committee, is a paper manufacturer and banker of Washington and Albany. He was born at Glen Falls in 1860 and went from the local academy to Cornell, entering the class of 1883. He left college at the end of his junior year and went into business.

The Platform.

The platform of principles on which the party is to stand contains a rebuke for attacks on the supreme court; no federal absorption of states' rights; no new nationalism, but the old nationalism built on the constitution of the United States; the largest possible measure of home rule for cities; a scathing denunciation of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law as a betrayal of the people and a burden on the average man; an accusation of gross extravagance on the part of the Republicans and a promise of retrenchment with reform and economy if the Democrats take control of the government of the state; a promise of an unwhitewashed investigation by a Democratic governor and legislature of legislative corruption; an out-and-out declaration in favor of state-wide direct nominations with personal enrollment; a declaration for an appropriation to make the corrupt practices law effective; a declaration for election of United States senators by the popular vote; the income tax, extension of the parcels post so that packages of increased size may be handled through the mails; real conservation; regulation of public service corporations; legislation to protect farmers and consumers and to give better roads; elimination of grade crossings; an employers' liability act; a restriction of child labor; full protection everywhere to all American citizens without regard to race, creed or color; the merit system in the public service; extension of the means to eradicate tuberculosis; and a final declaration against new nationalism. The chairman of the platform committee was asked to read this paragraph over and over again while the delegates cheered. Edward M. Shepard wrote the paragraph and he made it strong. It is as follows:

"We solemnly declare our inflexible opposition to the so-called 'new nationalism.' Its inventors put this forward as if it were progress, while in reality it is sheer reaction to tyrannical methods long ago shaken off by the free peoples of the world, oftentimes at cruel cost in treasure and blood. The settlers of our country fled from Europe to escape it. Whatever advance its adoption would bring is an advance toward socialism. They would have us abandon freedom. They would reduce the states to prefectures governed from Washington. They would clothe the president with power to declare what is lawful—a power usurped by one president in the case of a giant corporation absorbing a competitor. Such a new nationalism would lay the meddling hand of a bureaucracy upon every industry, increasing the burdens of taxation, making the struggle for life still harder and compelling every American workman to carry on his back a federal inspector.

"Against all this exaltation of federal centralized power to the destruction of home rule; against this despair of representative government; against the contemptuous impatience of the restraints of the law, and of the decisions of the courts, we contend, in supreme confidence that the people of this state and of this nation will not forget the noble heritage of their past, but upon that foundation will be built the still nobler progress of their future."

May Enjoin Hitchcock.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The representatives of several publishing concerns are talking of asking for an injunction restraining Postmaster General Hitchcock from using any of the money appropriated under the last postal bill for the printing of return addresses on stamped envelopes.

SPRUNG A SURPRISE IN OSTERMAN CASE

Defense Did Not Know Prosecution Had Little Red Book.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—The "little red book," a hitherto mysterious document, upon whose pages Henry C. Ostermann, self-confessed grafter, kept a private account of the hundreds of thousands of dollars car repair graft money he claims to have paid Illinois Central road officers to keep things running smoothly, will be offered in evidence at the hearing in Judge Bruggemeyer's court the first of the week. It was not known by the defense that Attorney Walter L. Fisher, for the prosecution, had possession of the private "little red book."

It is said to have been impounded a few days previous to Ostermann's confession of guilt and to have been the club which forced him to become a willing witness. In this "little red book" are recorded the names of the railroad officers who were paid money. "Every time Ostermann was 'held up' by the Illinois Central officers he recorded it in his private graft book," said Attorney Fisher. "The 'little red book' will clean up the details of the graft transactions."

LORIMER HELD OUT A PROMISE

How One Legislator Was Influenced In His Vote.

POSTMASTERSHIP INVOLVED

Representative Shepard of Jerseyville Tells How He Was Personally Approached by Expectant Statesman With a "Substantial Consideration" in Return For His Vote For Senator—Link Admits He Perjured Himself.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—That William Lorimer personally offered a "substantial consideration" for a legislator's vote in behalf of himself as a candidate for United States senator was the sworn statement made before the senatorial investigating committee by Henry A. Shepard, Democratic member of the legislature from Jerseyville. Shepard told the senators that Lorimer met him in an ante-room of the state capitol at Springfield on the day that the bi-partisan alliance piled up 108 Lorimer votes, and promised to appoint anyone that Shepard might name as postmaster at Jerseyville. The prosecution declared that Shepard's testimony showed that Lorimer had an intimate personal knowledge of the alleged plot to purchase his election by rewarding members of the legislature who voted for him. A sensation was caused at the inquiry when Representative Michael S. Link admitted under pressure that he had perjured himself before the Cook county grand jury in relating details of his receiving $1,000 of the so-called Lorimer money. The admission came as a bombshell in the camp of the defense of Senator Lorimer, which was thought to have scored a triumph in evidence given by Link during a three-hours' examination attacking State's Attorney Waymen and his assistants, in which Link said he had been put through the "third degree" and urged to tell "lies," under promise of having the perjury indictment against him quashed.

REGISTRAR RESIGNS

Tennessee Negro's Name Will Take Place of Vernon's on Bills.

Washington, Oct. 1.—There will shortly be a new name on the paper currency. William T. Vernon of Kansas, registrar of the treasury, tendered his resignation, and will be succeeded in office before long by J. C. Napier of Nashville, Tenn. The retiring officer and his successor are colored men. The office of registrar of the treasury under several administrations has been held to be a bit of patronage exclusively for the colored politician. Many years ago it was held by ex-Senator Blanche K. Bruce of Mississippi. Under President Cleveland's first administration General W. S. Rosecrans, a retired army officer, was appointed. Under President Cleveland's second administration, another white man was given the office, J. Mount Tillman of Tennessee. President McKinley appointed Judson C. Lyons, a colored Republican from Georgia, and President Roosevelt William T. Vernon of Kansas, colored, to succeed Lyons.

TAKING NO CHANCES

Our Troops in Philippines Ready to Go to China in a Hurry.

Manila, Oct. 1.—Acting under orders lately received here from Washington, the military authorities are quietly assembling supplies and arranging the transportation for approximately 5,000 troops in readiness for their embarkation to China. It is stated that the situation in that country is causing much uneasiness owing to the recrudescence of anti-foreign sentiment, which threatens another outbreak similar to the boxer rebellion.

Poison Was in Children's Reach.

Covington, Ky., Oct. 1.—While "playing doctor" two children of Thomas Cobb swallowed carbolic acid and died immediately after. They were brother and sister, aged five and seven years, respectively.

IT IS TO LAUGH; ONLY FOR A TIME

Democratic Joy Over Fact That Barnard Would Lose a Vote, of Short Duration.

HOPES DASHED AGAINST ROCK

Former Supervisor of the Census of This District Has Not Left Connersville as Was Reported.

The News never wishes to be the bearer of news that would cause pain, says the Connersville News. But if it is the means of baffling the hopes of the party or the papers which rejoiced because so good a citizen as Mr. William Tieman was thought to have moved out of the district, making one vote less for Mr. Barnard, it has no regret.

The reported removal of William Tieman of this city to Indianapolis was seized upon as a signal Democratic victory by some of the press of that party, the Examiner of this city among them. They thought evidently that it meant half a vote for Finly Gray and according to signs in these latter days, any little crumbs of comfort of that kind will be thankfully received.

But it remains for Mr. Tieman himself, who evidently was unaware of the figure he was supposed to be cutting as an aid to Democracy to kick over the whole fabric of partisan hope built up by these shrewd journalists. In a letter to the editor of the News, Mr. Tieman says under an Indianapolis date:

"I note in recent issue of the News a statement saying I had bought a grocery and intended moving to Indianapolis.

In reply I beg to say, it is true, I had an option on a business proposition of that nature, but the same was consummated in the interest of my son and of my son-in-law, who have been residents of Indianapolis for ten years.

My stay in Indianapolis will be short, just long enough to start them in. In fact, I expect to be back at the old home town in the very near future.

Trusting you will kindly make this correction at your earliest convenience and assuring you it is me for Connersville all the time.

Why we handle The FAVORITE

Being a Story of How we Were Convinced

First, we were attracted by the handsome appearance of the Favorite, but we did not decide to handle it for this reason alone, although we decided it was the most handsome base burner on the market.

We wanted a better reason than an attractive looking stove, so we looked it over thoroughly, comparing it point by point with other base burners, and this is what we found:

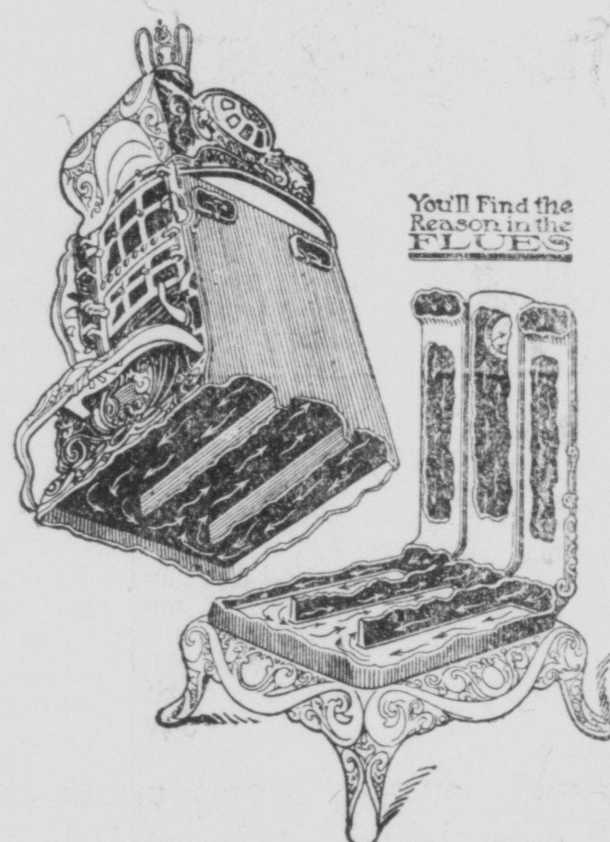

That the material from which it is made is all of the highest grades—the doors, mica frames and joints being absolutely air and paper tight.

We were told the Favorite produced the most satisfactory results with about half as much coal as other base burners. We discovered this to be true. We found the reason to be in its Triple Exposed Flues.

The sectional cut herewith explains these flues better than we can in words. The heat passes from the fire pot into the two outside down flues, across the bottom of the stove, under the ash pan, where it enters the central flue. It then passes back over the bottom and up the central flue to the chimney. Just think of this great radiating surface, and it is more than doubled, because the flues are SET OUT from the back of the stove. The flues therefore radiate from all sides, and the back of the stove radiates heat, also. This feature alone places the Favorite in a class by itself, making it the best and most economical heating stove in existence. But other features of its construction must not be overlooked. Would like to tell you all about them.

Do not put off buying your heating stove until the cold days come. Come and see us now, and our Favorite will be your Favorite too.
